Fred Dahl Injured By Falling Tree.

Fred Dahl, who with Chas. Darwell and T. E. Anderson has been operating a steam logging outfit the past month, was quite seriously injured Tuesday by a falling tree while at work in the woods. Dahl's heel was badly torn and a silver driven into his right side making a flesh wound. The accident happened at eleven o'clock and the injured man was brought to Wrangell on the Mabel arriving at eight o'clock the same afternoon. He is being cared for at the hospital.

Would Organize Pocahontas Council.

The local tribe of Red Men are seriously reviewing the prospects of organizing a Council of the Pocahontas, the ladies' auxiliary of the Improved Order of Red Men. Twenty eligible applicants are necessary to obtain a charter.

W. A. C. May Play Petersburg Team.

If the present prospects prove good Wrangell may see a game between a Wrangell Athletic Club team and a visiting team from Petersburg. Only recently the members of the club were informed that the city by the narrows has several teams and a club member, who expects to visit Petersburg soon, at the meeting Monday was commissioned to arrange for a game if possible.

Public School Scores Again.

The character costume entertainment staged at the Red Men's Hall last Saturday evening scored again for the Wrangell Public Schools. The show was given by the entire school as a benefit for the eighth grade class commencement exercises and as it was well attended, netted a neat sum for the cause.

Ask Permission To Ship Foxes.

F. H. Gray makes trip to Sum Dum in interest of Department-Rancher estimates his flock at four hundred.

James York, of Sum Dum, Alaska, proprietor of a Silver Fox ranch at that place recently asked permission to ship foxes to United States points. On account of laws restricting shipments of wild animals, the Department commissioned F. H. Grey, Assistant Fish and Game Warden of this section to make the trip to Sum Dum for the purpose of determining whether the foxes on York's ranch are not wild varieties.

The fox ranch is situated on a small island about two miles distant from Sum Dum Post Office. Mr. Gray reports that he did not see any of the animals but from the location of the ranch and the usual habitat of the silver fox he was convinced that they were the foxes and the descendants of the foxes taken there by York in 1901. Mr. York estimates that he has four hundred foxes at the present time.

Were Not Starving.

Some concern as to the condition of the Woodbridge and Lowery harder was the cause of sending Johnny Buck to Red Bay for the partners relief. The miners were found in good condition and not starving although some of their supplies were getting low.

Going Up Stikine.

Wm. Strong, R. Shangle, Chas. Olson and Ed. Kalkins are leaving for up the Stikine this afternoon. They will mush in over the ice to the mouth of the Iskut to secure the body of Gregg whose parents have sent instructions for the forwarding of the body East.

Notice of Settlement.

Notice is hereby given that we, Mrs. F. Wigg and Ella Jackson, Executrix's of the Estate of Jake Johnson Decd have filed in the Probate Court our final account and report and the Court has set April the 14th 1913 as the day for final hearing on said account.

All persons are cited to appear at the Court House, Wrangell Alaska, on said date at the hour of 2 o'clock P. M. and file their objections, if any, to said account.

Dated this 10th day of Feb. 1913:

Mrs. F. Wigg;
Ella Jackson;
Executrix's.

Bodies of Anderson and Daughter Brought Down From Hot Springs.

Party could not find a particle of food. Jury gives verdict of "want and exposure."

By boat and dog teams, the bodies of Peter Anderson (Captain Kidd) and daughter who were found February 5th by Chas. Roos were brought to Wrangell Tuesday by a party sent out by the Marshal's Office Saturday morning. The party, consisting of Chas. Roose, Ed. Kalkins, Richard Dale and J. D. Dawes, left Wrangell Saturday morning with dog teams and provisions for the trip up the Stikine to Hot Springs. The expedition returned late Tuesday night having secured the bodies and bringing them to Wrangell.

Believed They Starved.

At the inquest held Wednesday morning, the members of the party related their experiences and the conditions at the scene of the double tragedy. Anderson is believed to have died some time previous to the death of his daughter as there were indications showing she had attempted to fasten his body into the bunk by nailing slats across the front. Both bodies were precipitated to the floor of the boat by reason of its tipping onto its side and both bodies were partially frozen into the ice formed in the bottom of the boat. None of the party could find a morsel of food about the boat which confirms the belief that the pair died of starvation.

The Coroner's Jury consisting of M. F. Inman, foreman, T. J. Case, W. Watson, T. E. Anderson, G. H. Barnes and J. H. Welch rendered a verdict of, in the case of Anderson, "Death from disease, want of food and exposure," and of the girl's death from want of food and exposure."

Anderson was about sixty years of age and the daughter eighteen. (Continued on last page.)

Summer Resort?

Why not? With unexcelled fishing and hunting, highest mountains in North America, thousands of acres of unexplored wilderness, why do not thousands of outdoor vacationists seek Alaska for recreation? Opportunity and success are closely related. Who has not heard aged citizens throughout the country tell how they passed up opportunities in their youth which were taken by perhaps humbler personages that attained great success in later years. Possibly some (crank?) will erect a summer hotel here next summer and advertise his service to vacationists. Perhaps he will have numerous launches in connection which may be rented to the guests for pleasure trips to Mill Lake, Bradfield Canal, La Conte Glacier, Hot Springs, and Stikine River points. Perhaps he will start a business that will be the foundation for great success in later years. Some odd things have happened and the ideas of dreamers, cranks and eccentric people have often proved sound after years of evolution and progress.

Pretty Girls.

That pretty girls are few,
I call to mind a stately Claire
To whom I bent my knee,
And Geraldine, with lips so rare—
Ah, what a queen was she!
Where'er one looked there used to be
A lovely maid in view.
But now I find, from bias free,
That pretty girls are few.
—Chicago Record-Herald.

The Point of View.

"Say, pa, what is the difference between a visit and a visitation?"
Fond Parent—A visit, my boy, is when you go to see your Grandmother Jones, and a visitation is when your Grandmother Jones comes to see us.
—Philadelphia Ledger.

Pleasant Parting.

We parted. But I never shall forget.
A name not like the others haunts me yet.
The ardor waned, and then a chill drew nigh.
We parted—the malaria germ and I.

It Pays To Advertise.

At the urgent request of the advertising department we reprint this bit of logic from an unknown source:

"When a duck lays an egg she just waddles off as if nothing had happened."

"When a hen lays an egg there's a whole of a noise."

"The hen advertises. Hence the demand for hens' eggs instead of ducks' eggs."

DAMES AND DAUGHTERS.

Miss Constance Bentley of England is in the United States trying to wear out her grief for the death of a pet cat.

The Rev. Miss A. J. Allebach, the first woman minister to speak at the conference of religious liberals, is president of the National Association of Women in the Ministry. She was ordained last year and is now preaching for the missions in New York.

Miss May Robertson, claimed to be the only woman stage driver in the country, makes the trip regularly between Rifle and Meeker, Colo., a distance of thirty miles. She looks after the baggage, attends to the seating of passengers and gives attention to considerable transportation business along the route. She is a slender young woman, not yet twenty-one, and is credited with being one of the best drivers in the west.

Mrs. Horace E. Soule, the second woman wireless operator to sail out of an American port, arrived in San Francisco recently aboard the steamer Windber, eighty-four days out of New York. Mrs. Soule is the wife of the steamer's captain and became an operator that she might remain with her husband, whom she has accompanied on his voyages for nearly twenty years. They have made three complete cruises around the world together.

The Royal Box.

Czar Ferdinand of Bulgaria is supposed to be the best dressed sovereign in Europe and to possess a larger wardrobe than any of his brother monarchs.

Sultan Mohammed V. of Turkey in private life is very simple in his tastes. His meals are often frugal, his favorite dish being, it is reported, the so called "tas-kebab," small bits of mutton, well seasoned and roasted over a slow fire.

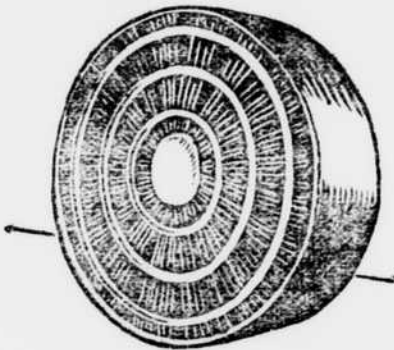

The king of Norway spends less on his attire than any other monarch and much less than many well to do private individuals. He keeps only about a dozen suits going at the same time and for some of his shooting and sporting suits does not pay more than $20. Altogether he does not spend more than $1,250 per annum on his ordinary dress.

AN EFFECTIVE RADIATOR.

German Invention Said to Give a Remarkable Amount of Heat.

A remarkably effective radiator has been devised by a professor of a technical high school in Prussia. The fundamental principle of the apparatus is the use of a great number of indirect radiation surfaces made of a material that has a high conductivity of heat.

For this purpose very thin zinc covered copper bands are disposed radially in the circular body of the radiator between the concentrically arranged hot water or steam heating coils, which are flat. By properly calculating the surfaces, cross sections and other dimensions an extraordinary heating efficiency is obtained with a minimum of material.

NEW GERMAN RADIATOR.

This efficiency is said to be so great that a radiator twenty-eight inches in diameter and fourteen inches high can raise the temperature of nearly 400,000 cubic feet of air over 100 degrees F. per hour.

Effect of American Silver in Asia.

In former years, when transport difficulties between Kashgar and Russian Turkestan were considerable, all the silver from which the local Chinese tael coins of Turkestan were minted was brought from China proper by cart via Lanchow. For that reason silver was scarce and had a high exchange value in comparison with that of places where the influx of silver was less restricted by physical obstacles. Now, however, according to the Indian (government) Trade Journal, American silver is largely imported via Russia, and the result has been a local depreciation of that metal. Prices, therefore, reckoned in the local silver currency, have been on an upward grade, and as this condition applies to all commodities alike—local produce as well as foreign goods—the price of Turkestan imports from India has participated in the rise.

Steamboats Too Few Gasboats Fill In.

The modern commercial traveler who makes all the towns in South-eastern Alaska at this time of the year has to have a head like a train dispatcher to make anywhere near schedule time. At present, only the two passenger boats, Jefferson and Curacao, on which they can go from port to port which makes it impossible for the drummers to keep their schedules without using the gasboat to fill in on short runs. On February 8th, the launch Lovera, of Petersburg, brought Wm. Aiken, John F. Chamberlain, A. F. Easter and W. A. Trinkle, across Dry Straits from Petersburg, enabling them to clean up their business here and take the Curacao south to Ketchikan.

WORNOUT MACHINERY.

Economy Demands That It Be Religated to the Scrap Heap.

In the older steel plants of small and medium size and even in plants that have grown up from a modest beginning to become immense concerns employing thousands of men we find that the auxiliary power machinery has been given little consideration in modernizing the machinery in general. But with auxiliary machinery it is very different. In many cases air compressors and pumps, even such important machines as blowing engines, have been kept in service long after their days of usefulness were over, when they were using enough steam to pay for a new machine in a very short time and to make the purchase of up-to-date machinery a splendid investment. The reasons for this method of procedure were that the new auxiliary power machines would not show an increased output of steel, nor would they show a great saving in the cost of production of the steel.

In many localities fuel was cheap. In some cases the steel companies owned their mines close at hand and coal could be had for the digging. In a few instances by-product gas furnished all the fuel required. In these cases there was some excuse for keeping inefficient machinery in use.

More recently, however, conditions have taken a decided change. The price of coal has advanced, making it urgent to be more careful in the use of it. Steel companies have found that it pays better to sell the coal than to burn so much of it themselves. Then, again, the supply of natural gas in some localities has become limited or has given out entirely—another reason for saving fuel.

In later years competition has become keener. Large plants have been built, and the older concerns have had to conserve their resources in order to meet this competition. Engineers have been employed to look after the saving of fuel—competent, trained engineers with efficient assistants. These departments keep a sharp watch on all the power machinery, steam, air, gas and water. Their business is to make efficiency tests on the machinery, measure power used by the different mills and departments, check up the fuel consumption of the boiler houses and be ready at any time to recommend the removal of a machine as soon as it becomes a paying proposition to replace it with a machine of greater efficiency. —Engineering Magazine.

Bodies Brought Down The Stikine

Last November, a party headed by Marshall Schnabel, went to their rescue believing they were out of provisions. They refused to return to Wrangell with the party and so what food had been carried up the river was left with them, which proved, however, insufficient for the length of their stay at the Hot Springs.

Troiling Record Of 6 Mo. 1 Day.

C. W. Clark, of Corry, Pennsylvania, who has been in troiling camps of J. H. McGehee since last June came into Wrangell last Friday having been out six months and one day, having in that time covered much territory, starting in at Point Baker and winding up at Quiet Harbor. Mr. Clarke was much impressed with the fishing prospects of this district and the stories which he will relate to his eastern friends will seem, to them, marvelous. Mr. Clarke took passage on the Curacao enroute East.
